

Get To Know You Game/Icebreaker

The objective of this game is to help your group of ladies get to know everyone at an event, not just the people they already know. It also will help avoid feelings of awkwardness. You will need paper, pens, basket or container, and game questions.

Directions:

Ahead of time, print out several different get to know you questions to be used with the game. Place these on small sheets of paper. Fold up the questions and put them in a basket or container. As the ladies arrive, ask them to draw a question from the basket. Explain that the object is for them to ask the question they choose to as many ladies attending as possible in the time limit given. Instruct them to introduce themselves and write down the names and a brief version of the answer for everyone of whom they asked the question.

Depending upon the number of ladies at your event, you will need to decide on a time limit for asking questions. After the time is called, go around the room and ask each lady to state their name, the question they chose, and to share the type of answers they received or a particularly unique answer.

***You will find the questions for this game starting on the next page. There is ample space in between each one so that you may just print the pages and then cut apart the questions to use.

Use your creativity to come up with more questions!
